Blairmore O.O.R.P. Hosts Large Turnout For District Meet

The Ladies of the Order of the Royal Purple gathered in the Elk's Hall in Blairmore last week to attend one of the largest district meetings ever to be held in District No. 7. The Royal Purple were honored on this occasion by a visit from their Supreme Honored Royal Lady, Onagh Hoeght of Olds, Alberta, who is the head of the Royal Purple in Canada.

194 Present

After the registrations which began at 4:30 p.m., a banquet was held. The local ladies were highly commended for catering so capably to the large attendance of 194 ladies. Attending in good numbers were members from Fort MacLeod and Granum with representatives also present from Kimberley, Barons, Warner and Lethbridge.

Honored Royal Lady Millie Yanota of Blairmore opened the session and officially welcomed the Supreme Honored Royal Lady Hoeght, District Deputy Kroli of Blairmore and other visiting Royal Ladies.

Flower Addenda

Supreme Honored Royal Lady Hoeght was honored with a flower addenda by the Blairmore officers. The addenda was impressively displayed by candle light with Margaret Christi of Blairmore rendering a solo "In the Garden of Tomorrow," accompanied by pianist Violet Maniquet.

After the introduction H. R. L. Yanota presented the gavel to District Deputy Kroli of Blairmore who carried on the business of the meeting.

All the lodges capably displayed the various parts of the ritual and floor work and were highly commended by the Supreme Honored Royal Lady.

The initiation ceremony was exemplified by the Coleman Order who welcomed into their lodge three new members, Theresa Kormer, M. Makin and M. Orlando.

Judge History Books

The history books were examined and judged with the prize for the best book going to the Fernie Lodge.

Honored Royal Lady Kangas of Granum was elected as the next district deputy and in responses she extended an invitation to all lodges to the next district meeting which will be held in Granum.

Hear Lodge Leader

At the end of the session District Deputy Kroli called upon Supreme Honored Royal Lady Hoeght who gave an interesting address embracing some amusing experiences in her travels visiting the O.O.R.P. Lodges across Canada. She has recently returned from a trip to Newfoundland and the Maritimes.

To conclude District Deputy Kroli thanked all the women for the co-operation in making the district meeting such a success. A special thanks was extended to the local ladies for being the hostesses which entailed such a great deal of work. District Deputy Kroli then gave the gavel to Honored Royal Lady Yanota for the closing ceremonies.

Refreshments were served before the guests left for their respective homes.

U. of A. Mixed Chorus Will Perform in Pass May 10

Miss Delina Celli and Mr. Frank Oliva of Coleman are members of the University of Alberta Mixed Chorus which will appear at the Elk's Hall, Blairmore on Thursday, May 10th, at 8:00 p.m.

When at full strength the chorus has 150 voices. However, not all of these are able to travel on Spring Tour since the earlier a start is made on a summer job, the more likely a student will have money for the next university term. However, this year about 90 singers will make the tour through the Okanagan Valley and towns in southern Alberta.

The death rate from lung cancer in males doubled in the 10 years between 1943 and 1953. There was no change in the lung cancer death rate among women.

Local Man Training Track Stars

Trevor Collister, the holder of many track meet awards in his native Australia, has taken on the job here of training future track stars.

Mr. Collister has devoted some time in the last couple of years to training of school students in track and field meets. He hopes to be able to train some of the young boys and girls of Coleman so that they may compete in out-of-town track meets and bring honors home to Coleman. In order to do this the track and field team are selling tickets on an electric clock and electric percolator in order to make enough money to purchase uniforms and supply travelling expenses to out-of-town meets.

All residents of Coleman should support this project to insure the future of potential track stars from Coleman.

Walter Tymchyna and Eddie Vincent are able assistants to Mr. Collister.

Wounded at Ypres, Benjamin Hobson Passes in Calgary

Word was received in Blairmore Tuesday of the death of Benjamin Hobson in a Calgary Hospital Tuesday morning.

Mr. Hobson, better known here as "Benny," was 61 and was born in Yorkshire, England. He came to Canada as a youth with his parents, settling in Edmonton where he attended school. On completion of his schooling he became employed with a railway company, working around the Slave Lake area. In 1915 he joined the Canadian Army and saw action in France in the First World War with the 10th Battalion. During his army service Mr. Hobson was wounded in Ypres and was gassed and also suffered injuries when a building collapsed in which only five of 10 men emerged alive. For his services he was awarded the regular army decorations.

On his return to Canada in 1919 he became employed with the Swift Canadian Company in Edmonton in the produce department and after some time left this work to operate several meat businesses in Totfield, Ralway and Jasper Park. While in Edmonton he also managed a Safeway store and was one of the managers of the first 10 Safeway stores opened in Edmonton. While there he was president of the Safeway Employees' Association. In 1938 he came to Blairmore and opened the meat market in the F. M. Thompson Co. Ltd. store where he remained until about one and a half years ago, when he retired due to ill health.

He was a member of the Canadian Legion for 30 years and was one of the original members of the Great War Veterans' Club in Edmonton. He was recently presented with his 25-year button by the Blairmore branch of the Legion, of which branch he was president for five years and also an executive member. He was a drummer in the Crow's Nest Pass Band and during the war years took an active interest in organizing a boys' band. He was the chaplain of the Blairmore Elks' Lodge and was an executive member of the Blairmore Community Sports Association. He also served for some time on the credit committee of the Blairmore Credit and Savings Union. He was a member of the Anglican faith.

He is survived by his widow, Mae, a son Archie, a daughter Lorene (Mrs. Vernon Harrison), all of Blairmore; three grandchildren, three brothers, Archie in Vancouver, Walter in Sheffield, England, and Charles in Brooks, and one sister Lilly (Mrs. Mastaden) in Toronto.

Funeral services were conducted from St. Luke's Anglican Church in Blairmore at 2 p.m. on Friday, April 27, and interment followed in the Blairmore Union Cemetery. The Rev. F. Scott of Pincher Creek officiated. Full military honors were conducted at the cemetery.

Coleman Volunteer Fire Brigade Sponsor Talented Miss Georgina Misura In The Bellevue May Queen Contest

Miss Georgina Misura

The Coleman Volunteer Fire Brigade are proud to announce Miss Georgina Misura as their candidate in the Bellevue May Queen contest on Monday, May 21st, 1956.

This attractive 16-year-old brunette is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Misura, Coleman and the granddaughter of Mrs. N. Carmelo, air old-time resident here. She was born and raised in Coleman and at present completing her grade 10 in Coleman Central school. She is well-known in the Crow's Nest Pass having participated many times in Miss Alice Buckna's variety concerts. She is a piano accordion player and played with the accordion quartet that won top award in its class during the Alberta Festival last year. This popular young student takes part in all such recreational activities as skating, curling, swimming, dancing and bicycle riding. She is striking beauty with a kind disposition and a member of the Catholic Church choir group.

It is sincerely hoped that the citizens of Coleman will support their candidate. Tickets are being sold by the firement and also Coleman Merchants. The proceeds and your fire brigade. The prize for the winning ticket drawn is $25. cash.

May 7th to May 19th Clean-Up Period

The month of May, will be Clean-up, Paint-up, Light-up and Beautification Month in Canada, and the observance in Coleman of this program is being sponsored by the Town of Coleman from May 7th to May 19th.

"While you probably see the benefit in your own home of spring cleaning and renovation, perhaps you wonder about the effectiveness of this community beautification program—"provided everyone co-operates, what will we gain?" Even this partial list will most likely surprise you: development of community spirit; reduction of fire losses; instruction in good housekeeping; respect for property; vacant lot improvement; promotion of safety; discouragement of crime; citizenship course for children; improvement of employee morale; clean-up supports business, stabilizes, restores and increases the value of real estate.

"How do we win?" In every way that will contribute to our safety, health and general well-being.

"It's up to you . . . if you and you, and you, support the campaign we'll all benefit individually and collectively. Clean-up, Paint-up, Plant-up, Light-up—It's a winning proposition."

Local Girl Wins Stutchbury Cup

Miss Frances Dibblee, mezzo-soprano of Calgary, won the Stutchbury Cup the highest award in the vocal competitions at the annual Alberta Music Festival held in Calgary.

Miss Dibblee, twice before a top winner in the provincial festival, sang "Don Fatale" and "Der Musenhon."

Miss Dibblee is a former Coleman girl, and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dibblee.

Stavley Lodge Pre- sents Travelling Gavel to Coleman Lodge

At the regular meeting of the Coleman Elks Lodge, No. 117, which was held on Saturday night, April 28, four new members were initiated in the mysteries of Elksdom. The Patrol Team was out in full force with Sergeant-at-Arms, Glen Poulton, in charge. Twenty-five members came down from Stavley with the travelling gavel, also D.D.G.E.R. Frank Watson of Stavley paid his official visit. We were sorry to hear that he had met with an accident and was still on crutches. A social evening followed after the meeting, music was provided by S. Liska, L. McGilivray and M. Juhlin. So Saturday, May 5, the Coleman Elks Lodge will travel to Stavley for the district meeting.

Scenic Crows Nest Prepares For Tourist Season

A picturesque sign, made up of a varnished tree stump, has been erected at the west end of the town picnic grounds and camp shelter in Coleman in preparation for the coming tourist season. The sign, painted on a slab of varnished wood, is mounted on an eye-catching tree stump that has been cleverly twisted by nature in the form of a large question mark.

Town work crews during last fall hauled in loads of earth into the town park and have levelled off the grounds which are to be seeded with grass in the immediate future. The camp ground is equipped with a modern shelter furnished with tables and benches, electric lights, running water and a cooking stove. This portion of the town park, erected by the Coleman Board of Trade, proved its worth last season when thousands of tourists used the facilities provided. Swings, slides and a wading pool installed by the Lions Club have also received extensive use and it is anticipated that the grounds will be used more than ever this season.

Meanwhile at Blairmore the town and Board of Trade are planning the erection of a picnic shelter and camp ground at the east entrance to the town of Blairmore. The location set off in a tree shaded spot is owned by the Gilmar brothers who have authorized the town to use the land. It is expected that an early start will be made towards building the tables and benches.

Tourist cabins and motels in the area are painting up and preparing for what seems will be a busy season which has already begun in this area. A trip through the scenic Frank Slide will always find visitors taking pictures or marvelling at the vast expanse of rock that buried a small mining camp and railway siding back in 1903.

Some of the motels in the area are building additional units to handle the heavy traffic that is seen in the area this summer. A hamburger and malted milk drive-in stand is at present under construction in the west end of town and will be ready for business in the very near future.

Markers, giving the name, height and history of local mountains in the Blairmore area are being prepared by a committee of the Blairmore Board of Trade and it is expected that the colorful signs that are to be placed in noticeable spots, will be erected before the heavy flow of tourist traffic starts.

Cord of Thanks

We would like to express our sincere thanks to the Lions Club, Mr. Dunford, Miss Linda Fields, who drew the lucky ticket and to those who generously donated the prizes.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Kroppink

Former Pass Resident Called By Death In Calgary

Word was received in Blairmore Monday of the death in Calgary General Hospital Monday morning of Joseph William Howe, a well-known former Crow's Nest Pass resident. Mr. Howe took ill Friday evening and was taken to hospital.

"Joe," as he was better known here, was 56 and was born in Suffolk, England, on Christmas Day 1899. He came to Canada with his parents in 1910, settling in Blairmore where he attended school. At the age of 16 he joined the Canadian Army and saw action overseas in France for which he received the regular decorations. On his return to Blairmore in 1918 he was employed at the Greenhill mine of the West Canadian Collieries later came into the taxi business. In 1930 he went to Watrous, Sask., working in the electrical work, returning to Blairmore after a few years to become employed in the town's electrical department.

In 1938 he went to the Yellowknife gold fields and after working there for a year returned to Blairmore, leaving again in 1942 for Bowden where he did electrical work for the RCAF station there for four years. In 1946 he went to Calgary and became employed at McGavin's Bakery. He was a member of the Canadian Legion and of the Protestant faith.

He is survived by his wife Lucy of Calgary, two daughters Yvonne, Mrs. G. Seight of Calgary, and Lucille, Mrs. J. Murray of North Burnaby, B.C., three grandchildren, one brother, Gus of North Vancouver, three sisters, Mrs. Ruby Decoux, Mrs. Mae Harmer of Blairmore and Mrs. Lucy Murphy of Victoria, B.C.

Services were conducted from Jacques Funeral Home with the Rev. E. N. P. Arme, MBE officiating. Interment followed in the Field of Honor, Burnside cemetery, Calgary.

Coal Output Shows Decline

Alberta coal production during March was 59,145 tons lower than for the same month in 1955, first monthly decline in nearly a year.

Cold winter weather had kept demand for coal high for several months, but with spring weather arriving demand and production have eased off.

Total production during March was 348,103 tons, compared with 407,248 tons in March, 1955.

Crownston remained the major producer with 106,057 tons for the month. The Drumheller field has 59,816 tons and the Castor field 44,458 tons.

June 1st Set For Submission of Briefs

Final date for the submission of briefs to the legislative committee studying the working of the Liquor Act has been set for June 1.

Public hearings will open June 18 for the purpose of hearing oral support of written presentations, and the questioning of witnesses. Locations of the hearings will be determined by the localities in which briefs originate.

Organizations and groups wishing to make written submissions are requested to file 12 copies of their briefs with the Clerk of the Assembly, Legislative Buildings, Edmonton.

The committee is headed by Edgar Gerhart. Members represent both sides of the Legislature. They include Education Minister Anders O. Aalborg, Chester Sayers, Ira McLaughlin, Harry Strom, J. Percy Page, Richard Hall and Nick W. Dushenski.

In recent weeks the group has been making studies in collaboration with the Alberta Liquor Control Board. When public hearings are concluded and investigation is complete, report with recommendations will be prepared for submission to the government for legislative action.

GARDEN NOTES—

Planting in straight rows makes for easier care

Why the straight rows and even spacing of seeds or plants in the vegetable garden? Part of the reason of course is neatness but only part. Mostly we plant this way because it makes the job of looking after the garden very much easier. If the rows are straight, we can cultivate in half the time as we do not have to wiggle carefully around each plant. And if the plants are uniformly spaced in the rows then we can weed far more quickly too.

Instead of feeling around with our fingers for the next onion or carrot or pea vine, we know it is approximately two, four or six inches from the previous one and at one swoop we remove 90 percent of the intervening weeds. If the vegetable garden were planted any old way, weeding, thinning, cultivating and spraying would be an unnecessarily backbreaking chore and we couldn't think of using a garden tractor or even a hand drawn cultivator.

Poultry flock vaccination is urged

REGINA. — Saskatchewan approved poultry flock owners were advised to vaccinate against infectious bronchitis all chicks taken into the flock this spring.

H. E. Payne, poultry commissioner, said when chicks carried parental immunity and the laying flock on the farm had had contact with the disease previously, vaccination should take place at two days of age.

When chicks do not carry parental immunity and the laying flock has had contact with the disease, chicks should be vaccinated at two or three weeks of age. Chicks which carry parental immunity and which go into a flock that has had no contact with the disease may be vaccinated at four to five months, or one month before coming into production.

Most chicks coming from Saskatchewan hatcheries this spring will have some immunity transmitted to them by their parents. Such parental immunity wears off however, in a week or two after hatching. This means the chicks become susceptible to infectious bronchitis and vaccination is necessary to maintain immunity.

Flock owners should enquire at the hatchery where they get their chicks as to the kind of vaccine to use, said Mr. Payne, and in no case should the vaccine be used on or around susceptible birds in production.

Two years ago there were heavy chick losses from infectious bronchitis in Saskatchewan. After which an intensive program of vaccination of approved flocks was carried out. As a result of the program there was little of the disease in 1955.

Developing mechanical translator

Within five years a machine capable of translating scientific papers from one language into another, will be developed, according to William N. Locke, head of the department of modern languages at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Prof. Locke admits that not all of the ideas and esthetic values of a manuscript can be expected to come through the mechanical translation process intact. "But," he said, "we should have a machine that will turn out a good deal better than a word by word translation."

Although a mechanical translator still does not exist, encouraging progress toward the development of one has been made, he said. In 1954 a digital computer—one of the so-called mechanical brains—was adapted for translating Russian into English. It was equipped with a vocabulary of 250 words and five syntax constructions.

Save time and money
"The words were translated and their order was changed automatically to make the output acceptable English," said Prof. Locke.

"Only about 50 percent of the world's scientific papers are published in English. This means that most United States scientists are forced to work in ignorance of data that could cut years of frustrating delay from research projects and save countless thousands of dollars if access could be had to information now locked behind the barrier of language."

"As the quality of the machine output improves the translations will become understandable to wider circles of readers. Eventually it may become possible to advance from technical writing into narrative and other types of literature."

B-I-T-B hurt over exclusion

BARTON - IN - THE - BEANS, England. — This Leicestershire hamlet with a name surviving from Roman times, is still here and doing nicely, thank you. To the dismay and bewilderment of some, the parish was dropped from the new index of the 19,000 place-names in England and Wales, compiled by the general registry office. Officially Barton-in-the-Beans is dead.

Ernest Gurnham, a retired clergyman and one of B-I-T-B's 170 citizens, was surprised.

"We've been here for hundreds of years," he said. "I can't understand why we've suddenly been left out."

Named by Romans
Barton-in-the-Beans is a literal translation of Barton-in-Fabis, the name given by the Romans 1,500 years ago to this rich bean-growing area. The name was neglected to prevent confusion with another Barton-in-Fabis, in Nottinghamshire.

Last word from the publishers of the index: "It certainly should have been in the book, but it wasn't mentioned to us as being the name of the locality. Strange, because it's not an easily forgotten name, is it?"

The question of B-I-T-B's existence was raised by a reader of the Sunday Times who wrote saying he was "dismayed" by the exclusion. "For years, the name has fascinated me by its supreme agricultural quality."

ANOTHER WHOPPER

Vaughn Crist, of Cheboygan, Michigan, knows all about "the one that got away." Crist, ice fishing on Black Lake, landed a 28-pound muskellunge. But someone stole the whopper from his parked car before he had a chance to show off the fish to friends.

Stirling Hayden has been mentioned as the leading actor. A script writer for the film company spent some time in South Dildo last year and said filming might take place this July when the potatoes strike.

"We feel the Dildo pictures will make a big hit with fans who like outdoor movies," he said.

FIRST ADHESIVE STAMPS

FOR THE BIRDS

A meeting house; for the children a bunny table

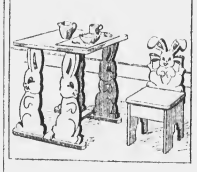

Some birds are so sociable that they like to make nests in a community house. This miniature New England meeting house with 12 compartments for nests is sure to attract purple martins and swallows. These summer visitors more than pay their way by destroying countless insects. This house should be set atop a post at least 10 feet from the ground and well apart from trees and buildings. It has been found that a barrier against cats and squirrels, fixed around the post a couple of feet below the house is necessary to attract martins. Pattern 340 may be ordered separately for 35¢ or with the Bird House Booklet No. 2 containing a variety of houses at $1.50 postpaid.

NEW ENGLAND MEETING-HOUSE FOR MARTINS AND SWALLOWS

BUNNY CHAIR MADE WITH PATTERN 245 MATCHING TABLE PATTERN 246

This novel table held up by Bunnies can make your children's lunch and play time the gayest in town. Where there are no children in the house the table makes an interesting coffee table. These pieces are made from 3/4-inch solid stock and the bunnies are traced directly onto the wood from the pattern, which also shows exactly where to place each shade and color for realistic effects. The patterns are 35¢ each. As Spring is just around the corner outdoor play equipment will soon be needed. A packet of five standard size patterns will be mailed for $1.50. Study groundhog for heart surgery

The fact that a groundhog can live all winter with a body temperature of only five degrees above freezing may prove invaluable in heart-surgery on human beings, says the University of Toronto.

Much more difficult operations could be undertaken if it were possible to cool human beings to such a low degree instead of to the 78 degrees which is the best that can be done with present knowledge.

It is believed that the groundhog's fat-supply may contain a hormone influencing cold-resistance; and if this theory is proved, it would mean that the groundhog does not depend upon fat accumulation alone to see it through the winter.

If a pure extract of the fat can be obtained, it is intended to try it on rats in the hope that it will enable them to endure cold to a greater degree.

Dispute date Caesar's death

Scholars are pretty sure that Julius Caesar fell bleeding at the foot of Pompey's statue on the Ides of March in 44 B.C., but there's a big difference of opinion over whether that was 2,000 years ago.

The dissident note was sounded by a New York University professor, Johan Johnson, as rival Columbia University opened an exhibition in commemoration of what it claims is the 2,000th anniversary of Caesar's assassination in the Roman Senate.

Johnson, who is chairman of the Classics department at NYU's Washington Square college, maintains that it was only 1,999 years ago that Caesar died at the hands of the conspirators. Johnson says that span of time from one B.C. to one A.D. was only one year. There was no year zero, Johnson says.

The 2,000 year figure is arrived at, of course, by adding 1956 and 44, and that's what R. O. Baughman, of the Columbia University library, did in deciding to hold the dual millennium observance this year.

"Other celebrations have been based on this calculation and I would not be distressed if we went on with the exhibition," said Moses Hadas, professor of Greek and Latin at Columbia in backing up Baughman.

Gilbert Highet, professor of Latin at Columbia, said, however, he thought the exhibition should have been called off and said he went along with Johnson's calculation.

GEMS OF THOUGHT

SPRINGTIME

Now fades the last long streak of snow,

Now burgeons every maze of quick

About the flowering squares,

And thick

By ashen roads the violets glow.

—Tennyson

For, lo, the winter is past, the rain is over and gone; the flowers appear on the earth; the time of the singing of birds is come, and the voice of the turtle is heard in our land.

Song of Solomon

When the hounds of spring are on winter's traces

The moths of months in meadow or plain

Fills the shadows and windy places

With hisp of leaves and ripples of rain.

—Swinnerton

Every clod feels a stir of night, an instinct within it that reaches and towers,

And, groping blindly above it for light,

Climbs to a soul in grass and flowers.

—J. R. Lowell

THESE NEED CARE

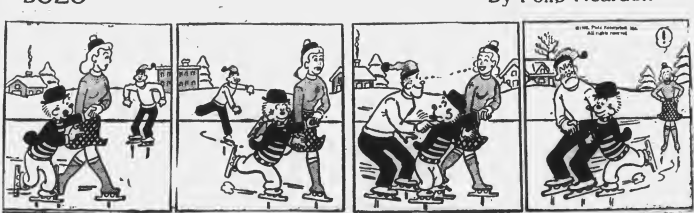

The toothbrush should be given as much care as any important tool receives. Since brushing the teeth immediately after eating is one of the most important "musts" in tooth preservation, two brushes per person are advisable, one to keep at home and one for school or work. The brush should be kept clean and be allowed to dry after use.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen

Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor," (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug counter.

How to develop a better throwing arm

baseball season, start now to develop the muscles in your fingers, wrists and arms. Here are some exercises which will help you do this important job.

First, cover a hardball or softball (depending on which game you play) with 7 or 8 layers of heavy black electric tape.

Grasp the ball as if you were going to throw it, hold your arm out in front of you and twist and turn as fast as possible, and continue until your wrist and forearm muscles begin to ache. Rest for a while, and then switch to the following drill:

Hold the ball in the tips of your fingers and then try to squeeze it flat. Continue until your fingers are too tired to go on. Then put the ball down and have a session of hand stretching. To do this, you simply stretch your fingers as wide as you can, trying to make your hand as large as possible. Stretch until your hands become tired.

TRY AND STOP ME!

By BENNETT GELF

Jacques Chamberlain, who is Somerset Maugham's agent in America, tells of a party where one guest simply could not keep away from the distinguished British author. He was more than civil at first, but his patience soon began to wear thin, especially when she kept referring to him as "the master."

"You dear, sweet man," she cooed as the party broke up. "You've been such a darling, yet underneath I'm sure you're simply been loathing me all evening, haven't you?"

"Not at all, madam," replied Maugham with a final burst of gallantry. "Only for nine-tenths of it."

"The first lesson to remember in the gentle art of self-defence," advises Steve Allen, "is to keep your glasses on."

A young crooner stopped signing autographs long enough to peruse a draft notice that had come in the mail. Then he tossed it to his secretary. "Tell them," he instructed, "I can give them the last two weeks a year from now."

A great big borzoi hound once boarded a subway train at Times Square in New York, legend says, but had to stand up because all the seats were occupied by Pekinese. "I'm exhausted," complained the borzoi when he got home. "Deprived of a seat by those little mutts!"

"That will teach you a lesson," said his wife. "Keep off the subway in the Pekese hours."

Herb Shriner says, "If at first you don't succeed, you're running about average."

Do each session of this drill once, then start all over again and continue for 10 or 15 minutes. Do this drill every day.

Jumpers need drive

Any track and field athlete who takes part in a jumping event — broad jump, hop step and jump, high jump, pole vault — needs plenty of leg drive. This means that the muscles you use to drive yourself upwards and forwards must be strong and packed full of that quality known as "spring."

Here's a drill that will help develop that power: Hold on to a chair or table for support. Lift one leg behind you and grab it by the ankle. Bend your other leg and squat down as close to the floor as possible. Then "drive" yourself up to a standing position on your toes as fast as you can.

If you want to throw with more power and accuracy this coming season, repeat three times on each leg, and keep alternating as long as you can.

Some athletes will lack the leg strength to do this drill. If so, do deep knee bends (both legs at once) in groups of 10 as fast as possible, with a 10 second rest between each group, until tired.

Do these drills every day, and you'll soon begin to notice the improvement in your leg strength and power.

WEEKLY BIBLE COMMENT

SHOULD APPLY EASTER'S MEANING ALL YEAR ROUND

Easter in the soul is often something different — something more — than Easter in the churches.

Everything we celebrate in connection with the life, death, and Resurrection of Jesus is not to be limited to one day or season, but should be extended to every day and every season.

On Easter Sunday many churches that ordinarily have a single service conduct two services to accommodate the crowds. The following Sunday, the crowds may be even less than usual.

What lies back of this discrepancy? Is the attendance a recognition of the Resurrection of Jesus and a rejoicing in the supreme event? Or is Easter attendance often a custom?

The name "Easter" has its origin in a pagan festival of spring. For some, perhaps, the joy of Easter is little more than a pagan bow to the advent of springtime after the grimness of winter.

Even for many of the sincerely religious there is a difference between the celebration of the Resurrection of Jesus as a far-off event in history and the celebration of the fact of an ever-present and living Christ.

If Easter were truly in the souls of many for whom church going on Easter Sunday is a formal matter, one cannot but reflect that their lives would be different in relation to the church, the Christ, and their fellowmen throughout the year.

Iceland's capital warm as New York

Iceland's capital, Reykjavik, is 1,700 miles closer to the North Pole than is New York City, says the National Geographic Society. Yet Reykjavik has an average January temperature only one degree lower than that of the United States metropolis, thanks to the warming influence of the Gulf Stream. If Rockefeller Plaza were moved to Reykjavik, its skating rink would still require artificial freezing.

PILOTED BRITISH JET AT 1,132 M.P.H.—Peter Hays, test pilot for the Fairey Company, and World War II ace with the Royal Air Force, was the pilot who flew the British Fairey Delta 2 jet plane to a record speed of 1,132 m.p.h. recently to recapture the world speed record from the U.S. The flight was made over a nine-mile course in England.

Death toll 22 in Alberta tractor mishaps

One of the worst killers in Alberta last year was the mishandled tractor, according to a summary compiled by the Alberta Safety Council, based on dependable statistics.

During 1955, no less than 22 persons in this province lost their lives in tractor accidents. Of these, 18 were drivers, two were passengers and two bystanders.

Of the driver accidents, three men lost their lives when the machine side-tipped while being operated in a field, while six other fatalities were due to back-flips, probably the most frequent type of tractor accident. There were five deaths due to the tractor overturning on a highway. Three drivers were killed in falling from a tractor. While in one instance, there was a fatality when a load ran into a tractor.

A mind indisposed

Like most diseases to which man falls victim, illness of the mind can often be remedied if given proper treatment. There is no reason to be ashamed of a mental sickness; the mind can become unwell just as easily as the body. Many mental illnesses are comparable with those of the body — ranging from a simple indisposition to the more serious types that require long and intensive treatment. Many of the less serious forms are successfully treated in the special wards of a general hospital in a matter of a few weeks. The important thing is early diagnosis and treatment.

Death of one passenger, an 11-year-old girl, occurred when the tractor side-tipped in a field, while the other, a four-year-old boy, fell from the tractor and was run over.

The two bystanders killed were one and a half and three-year-old children who were run over by tractors driven by their fathers.

STORE SHOPPING HOURS

Two recent public opinion surveys -- one nation-wide, the other Ontario-wide -- have found that seven out of ten Canadians are in favor of being allowed to shop at retail stores one or two evenings a week. In most localities such a change in store hours would require a change in existing early closing by-laws.

Both of these public opinion polls report that rural and smaller town residents are more strongly in favor of evening shopping than are the residents of the larger cities, a disclosure that has surprised some commentators, but which merely points up to the fact that the large city facilities and those of their suburbs afford easier shopping for metropolitan housewives, and, with the five-day work week trend, families may have a whole day free for shopping.

Farm families have neither as much time for shopping nor are stores as easily available to them. However, in the "in-between" communities, those not of immense size, nor not strictly rural, opinion on shopping hours might well differ from the above poll results, and indeed might vary between one community and another.

Looking at the early closure laws as they now exist in most of Canada we find they are an anachronism. The first of such laws was enacted in Ontario about 70 years ago, and its primary purpose was to protect child employees against exploitation.

In the intervening years provincial labor codes have taken over that function of the early closing laws, setting maximum hours for store clerks just as for factory workers and other industrial employees.

But the early closing statutes remain on the books and, in most places in Canada, municipal councils must impose hours of closing on ALL stores if such a by-law has been requested by three-quarters of the shopkeepers of that trade.

The public has no control over such by-laws, neither have those retailers who might wish to remain open in the evening. Today, the early closing laws seemingly exist solely for the convenience of those retailers who prefer to close at some stipulated time, but who do not want competitors to be free to remain open while they themselves are closed.

While we are against a poll amongst retailers to find out how they wish store hours to be, we also think that the local shoppers should also have the opportunity of expressing their preferences. After all, the shopper keeps the retail stores going, not the reverse.

OF MANY THINGS

THE CROW

In mid-March, visiting a little hospital in a southern Manitoba town, I overheard a snatch of conversation which still stays in my mind. A son was visiting his aged mother, who had been bedridden for months. At times the old lady was inclined to be a bit irascible, and her frequent demands on the nurse's time sorely tested the patience of the staff.

Her son was a bachelor farmer who, in a shy sort of way, told his mother of how much he missed her cooking, and how busy he was with the chores, cooking and all. Those observations did little to cheer the aged mother. Then, after a few minutes of silence, he observed, "Mom, the crows are back! They've been seen down in Pembina Valley!"

"Oh," she exclaimed, "isn't that just wonderful!" And there was an almost reverent tone in her voice which a short while ago had poured out high-pitched invective at a nurse.

Odd that a bird such as a crow which, by no stretch of the imagination could be called beautiful, gets a welcome back which might be envied by the Bird of Paradise. Personally, I'll never cease to thrill at the sound of the first ravenous "caw! caw!" of spring.

And the longer, the harder the winter has been, the greater the welcome extended to the crow. Strange that we all welcome back the crow with so much fervor; but, like that of a guest who stays too long is resented. Some places even pay bounty for the same crow, dead, which in spring had lifted our spirits. What irony.

But the migratory old crow brings its black and unmistakable evidence to winter-weary westerners that spring really is here, that robins will be coming soon, too, and that sky-blue anemones will be bursting forth in sunny fields.

The little old lady in the hospital had seen over eighty summers; but still, deep in the eventide shadows of her life, a resurgence of feeling swept over her at the news the crows had returned. "Isn't that just wonderful?"

She was so right! It is wonderful! It always is!

Cassino Memorial Will be Unveiled September 30

Cassino Memorial will bring vivid memories to Canadian and Polish veterans' now residents of Coleman.

Field Marshall Earl Alexander of Tunis will unveil the Cassino Memorial Sunday, Sept. 30, the Imperial war graves commission announced.

The memorial has been built in the Cassino war cemetery which lies halfway between Rome and Naples in an amphitheatre of hills with views of the Benedictine monastery atop Monte Cassino and of the town of Cassino.

The memorial commemorates soldiers of Commonwealth armies who died in the Italian and Sicilian campaigns and have no known graves. There are 193 Canadian names on the memorial.

The Canadian divisions — 1st Infantry and 5th Armored — fought through Sicily and Italy and helped to break the Gustav and Hitler lines. Cassino itself was taken by 2nd Polish Corps. Earl Alexander was Allied commander in Italy.

NEXT OF KIN INVITED

The commission said individual letters of invitation to the ceremony have been sent to next-of-kin of each man commemorated on the memorial or buried in the cemetery. More than 850 Canadian — 848 soldiers and seven airmen — are buried there.

The memorial consists of a formal garden with an ornamental pool in the centre, from each side of which rise marble pillars on which 4,068 Commonwealth names are recorded.

Two stairways lead from the main road up to the entrance to the cemetery and on their walls are inscribed in English and Italian these words:

"Within this cemetery stand pillars of stone which bear the names of soldiers of the British Commonwealth and Empire who fell in the assaults upon the shores of Sicily and Italy or in later battles to free Italian soil and to whom the fortune of war denied a known and honored grave.

"Around them are graves of their comrades who died fighting in these parts to open the way to home and the north."

Early diagnosis and effective treatment are the only satisfactory means of cancer control.

Rose Bubniak Becomes Bride of Natal Man

A very lovely wedding was solemnized in the Holy Ghost Church in Coleman on April 14th when Rose, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Bubniak, became the bride of Gino, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Quarin of Natal, B.C. Rev. Father Fleming officiated at the nuptial mass, and Miss Joanne Montalbetti presided at the organ.

Entering the church on the arm of her father, the bride was lovely in a floor length gown of tulle and lace. The strapless lace bodice was accented with sequins and topped with a lace jacket with lily point sleeves. The bouffant skirt of nylon tulle was accented with sequin and full to the floor over a hoop. A tiara of sequins and seed pearls held in place the fingertip veil of nylon tulle edged with lace. She carried cascading bouquet of red roses and white carnations. Her only jewellery was an amethyst pendant, an heirloom in the groom's family for four generations.

Preceding the bride down the aisle, were her sister, Mrs. D. MacFarlane, as matron of honor and Miss B. Gydos of Calgary, and Miss P. Kovenko, R.N. of Rimby as bridesmaids. Mrs. MacFarlane wore a ballroom length gown of sea-foam green satin and net with white accessories. The bridesmaids chose gowns of daffodil yellow lace and net with matching headpieces. They all carried colonial bouquets of roses and carnations.

Remo Quarin, brother of the groom, was best man, and guests were ushered by Gerald Weibe of Red Deer. Mr. Frank Yanota of Blairmore, was groomsmen.

Miss Ann Bodisch of Coleman, sang during the mass and at the signing of the register. A duet was rendered by Chris Peressini and Milie Yancia of Blairmore, the bride's sister. Also assisting at mass as altar boy was the bride's brother Tommy.

A reception was held at noon for relatives and close friends. The bride's table was centred with a three-tiered wedding cake, flanked by flowers. The toast to the bride was proposed by Father Fleming with the groom responding.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Bubniak wore a charcoal suit with pink accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. The groom's mother wore pink brocaded satin with matching accessories and a corsage of carnations.

Music was supplied by Milan Viskovy and his uncle Andrew.

The happy young couple left on Sunday for a honeymoon to be spent in several U. S. points. For travelling they wore twin suits of deep charcoal, the bride's being box style. Complementing her ensemble were white and panama accessories and she wore a corsage of red roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Quarin have taken up residence in Natal, B. C., where the groom is employed.

Out of town guests present at the wedding were from High River, Calgary, Red Deer, Rimby, Natal and Blairmore.

Patterson found the toy, "AWOL" from some child's playthings, in yard of his San Francisco home 18 years ago. It inspired him to begin collecting detailed miniatures of troops of all nations. His army now numbers upward of 50,000 troops and has "invaded" two whole rooms of his home. Evolution of soldiering is represented in his collection by everything from bowmen of the Middle Ages to a preview of space soldiers of the future. He often buys several sets of particular favorites in order to build units of his army to full strength.

—By ONA FREEMAN LATHROP

THE long, black limousine with a uniformed chauffeur at the wheel came gliding slowly down the bumpy brick street and rolled to a stop in front of the little white house. No one got out.

From her bedroom Ann Marie heard the soft purr of the motor and peeked out through the living room. Yes, it was Aunt Sarah, with Jennings in front beside the chauffeur. She'd been driving this moment. She glanced hastily around. Let them come. Everything was orderly. Tommy was playing out in the back yard. Their own little car was in the drive. They would know she was home. Then why didn't they come in?

Three minutes—four—went by and still no one knocked. Ann Marie had tidied her hair and powdered her nose. She peered out again. Aunt Sarah sat on the edge of the back seat, staring at the house, the motor still purred shyly, the chauffeur thumped the wheel impatiently, yet no one stirred.

Finally the car moved away silently, luxuriously, like a sleek cat that had stalked its prey. Ann Marie heaved a sigh of relief, yet she was angry too. The very nerve! In a cold white fury. So that was her method!

At dinner she told Tom. "Your Aunt Sarah was here today."

"Well, fine! I knew she'd unbend sooner or later and, old," he chuckled. "After all, the old lady has a lot of human kindness in her soul."

"Oh, she didn't come in. She just drew up her chariot in front and stared at her at her humble abode. Probably seeing how the 'other half' lives. It must have nauseated her. They went right on."

"What? You don't say? Well, I didn't think she'd quite pull that. She is as friendly as can be when she comes in the store. I wish—" He didn't say more but Ann Marie wondered.

"Well, evidently she still can't stand the idea that you married beneath you. Some day I'll show that grand dame on her pinnacle just how far beneath you you really did marry, if I lose my temper sufficiently," she vowed.

"What'll you do, Mommy. Tommy wanted to know, his eyes as big as saucers, his mouth stuffed full."

Tom made a grimace that signified "little pitchers" but Tommy persisted.

"What's marriage beneath you?" he demanded. They laughed.

"Oh, Daddy was upstairs and I was in the basement," Ann Marie told him jokingly, and they hastened to talk of other things.

But the thought rankled the next day as Ann Marie went about her work. Had Tom stepped down to her level, or had she come up to his, or was there any difference at all?

She recalled how she and Tom had been high school sweethearts and how flattered she had been to have one of the boys from Country Club Place come calling for her at the little white bungalow on Main Street. She'd been swept off her feet when he asked her to marry him, but after all her parents were good country stock, and there was no reason why they shouldn't have their happiness. Or was there? She hadn't foreseen that his family would drop him from the accepted order of "son following father" in the big department store they owned. Those had been hard years—living with her folks while Tom worked at odd jobs about town, and then Tommy coming along to complicate matters.

But last year Tom's father had died and Aunt Sarah had unbent enough to ask him to come back and help with the store, and now they had moved into the little white house and everything was rosy—it would be, if only Aunt Sarah would accept her too. Well, it wasn't Ann's fault, was it? She kept the little house shining and they had their own circle of friends and Aunt Sarah shouldn't spoil her life. But she knew Tom in some obscure way felt there was something they should do about it. Well, she wouldn't go to Aunt Sarah's first, that she had vowed.

And then that afternoon the big limousine drew up to the curb again. This was too much! She would not go out and beg her to come in. Let them sit and stare. Only this time Tommy was playing in the front yard. Ann Marie watched discreetly from behind the houseplant drapes.

"Are you Tommy Parkhurst, little boy?" Aunt Sarah called. Tommy went right on tinkering with his tricycle. "Sure. Are you Aunt Sarah Parkhurst?"

"Why, yes. How did you know?" Her dignified expression almost cracked into the semblance of a smile under her black bonnet.

"Oh, I've heard my folks talk about you and your big car."

"Well! And what did they say?" she inquired indignantly.

"Oh, nuthin', only Mommy said you never liked it 'cause she was in the basement and Daddy up stairs when they got married and the preacher had to yell. Could you hear him clear out to your house?"

Ann Marie stifled the impulse to call him in. She went on eavesdropping.

"No, I couldn't," Aunt Sarah answered, a puzzled expression on her face.

"Maybe you were up on your pinnacle that Mommy says you sat on," he went on nonchalantly. "Do you like it up there on your pinnacle? Ain't it lonesome up there all alone?" he sauntered toward the car.

Aunt Sarah was wiping off either a tear or a smile, but she called, "Come here, Tommy. You are very much like your Daddy used to be, did you know that? And I loved your Daddy very much."

Why, the poor old woman! She was actually crying. Ann Marie couldn't help feeling sorry for the lonely old lady. Perhaps after all she wanted to make friends and didn't know how. Tommy lunged back shyly. Suddenly Ann decided that this was her chance to bring the family together. She stepped to the door and went down the walk.

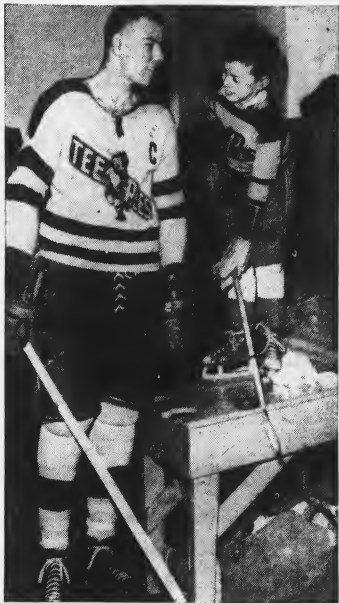

Why, hello, Aunt Sarah. Why don't you come in? I've been waiting for you to call on us in our new home. Go hug Aunt Sarah, Tommy."

Fashion designers unveiled 300 examples of their "delicate look" for men at a recent clothing convention at Miami Beach. But some of the observers had their doubts whether the men would ever wear the results.

Aunt Sarah got out of the car and took Tommy in her arms. Then she turned to Ann. "My dear, you don't know how I've longed to come in, but I supposed you wouldn't care to have me. I've had James drive past night after night, but I couldn't get up the courage to stop. If you only knew how lonely I've been for Tom. You see, I used to live in a little white house very much like this before I married Tom's uncle. I wasn't always a Parkhurst, you know. And I know exactly how you feel about being in the family. I'd love to come in."

Well! So she was human after all. Ann Marie put her arm about Aunt Sarah's shoulder and led her graciously into the little white house.

SHORT COURSE IN CAMOUFLAGE—Ab Hoffman, nine, tells how "he" played hockey all winter with a Toronto, Canada, junior team until a birth certificate check showed that "Ab" is short for "Abigail", not for "Abner". Towering interest is displayed by six-foot, seven-inch Elmer Vasco, forward on a St. Catharines, Ontario, team. The peppery little player much prefers the role of a boy, declaring that girls' dress is "stupid".

He'd prefer a straight jacket to men's new 'delicate look'

"Are they kidding?" one male spectator said. "I'd rather wear a straight jacket."

"This is too much for me," one male spectator said, getting ready to leave the showroom.

But, his wife held him back with these words: "You stay and see these designs. Don't you want to be well-dressed?"

"Ever since women fought for equal privileges in the early 1900's, they have been copying men's fashions in previous years, predicted 'the delicate look will catch on.'"

So, the designers took the new feminine fads and adapted them to men's wear.

Oriental trend

The Oriental trend, which has hit a peak in female popularity this year, was carried out in men's pajamas and shirts. Some of the shirts, brocaded with "delicate" Japanese cherry blossom leaf designs, had mandarin collars, or, hardly a collar at all—a fashion usually designed for the "weaker sex."

Even men's undershirts got a going-over by the designers, who showed a selection of brightly colored vertical stripes for the men to wear under their shirts.

"This introduces the Italian look to men's clothing," one designer noted.

Even shoes were included. Designers offered pink, yellow, and baby blue footwear for the "delicate gentleman."

In describing the latest men's fashions, the designers threw in such items as "peacock-white on black," "cinnamon brown panels."

FAMILIAR—It's not the "arrow" look. The waistline stays where it belongs. It's designed to fit the female form without drastic alteration of the original chassis. This refreshing spring outfit of dress and jacket is fashioned in blue-and-white shantung. It's by Victor Stiebel, of London.

LARGE BODY FRESH WATER—Lake Superior, covering 31,810 square miles, is the largest body of fresh water in the world.

Cereal grain substitutes to find markets in 1956

OTTAWA—The question most farmers are asking this spring is: "What special crops can be grown successfully in 1956 for which there may be a market?"

In many areas, according to A. G. Kusch of the Experimental Farm, Scott, Sask., Canada Department of Agriculture, there could be some increase in the production of certain forage crop seeds. However, these are not annual crops.

Crested wheatgrass, especially the new variety Summit, intermediate wheatgrass, bromegrass and Russian wild ryegrass are all grasses for which there is a fairly good seed demand at present. Seed of creeping red fescue, red clover and alsike clover can be produced in certain areas where they are hardy enough to survive the winters. Alfalfa seed production is unpredictable and should be confined to certain northern areas where seed production has proved to be reliable.

There could be an increase in the acreage of flax. We might double our flax acreage and still not produce much more than we did last year, because the average per acre yield of flax in 1955 was considerably higher than the long term average yield.

Grown under contract
There has been an increase in the acreage seeded to rapeseed. Most of this seed is grown under contract and it would be advisable for new growers to obtain contracts in order to be sure of disposing of the seed produced. Rapeseed is more suitable for areas where the moisture supply is good, as the crop yields poorly under dry conditions.

Sunflower production is suitable for certain southern areas where there is a fairly lengthy frost-free growing season. Soybeans require a greater moisture supply than do sunflowers, and dry pea production is suitable for some northern areas where the moisture supply is adequate. Mustard seed may be produced successfully in certain southern areas. Peas and mustard seed should also be grown under contract to ensure disposal of the seed.

Durum wheat and malting barley, although cereal crops, could be seeded on increased acreages to replace some of the bread wheat acreage. In many areas where rust is not a factor, durum yield as well as or better than bread wheats. However, they are not too suitable for northern areas because of their lengthy growing season. More good quality malting barley could be grown in these areas. A good demand for this type of barley at present. If durum can't be grown in northern areas, good malting barley can.

For information on the growing of any of these special crops and the areas to which they are best adapted, contact your nearest Experimental Farm.

New relaxant brings relief in many ills

Several groups of American medical investigators reported recently that a new muscle relaxant in the experimental stage shows promise of bringing comfort in several diseases.

The drug, known as zoxalomet (flexin), was tried on patients suffering from spasticity, various rheumatic and arthritic diseases of the brain and spinal cord, and for children with cerebral palsy.

Dr. William Amols of New York said the drug has a longer period of action, greater effectiveness when given orally, and causes fewer side effects than older relaxants. He added that the drug's principle role seems to be to aid in nursing care, increase the comfort of the patient and aid the work of the physical therapist.

Dr. Richard T. Smith, Kenneth M. Kron, William P. Peak and Irving F. Hermann of Philadelphia, said the drug was especially effective in relieving stiffness and aching from rheumatic diseases. They reported excellent to good results in 85 of 100 patients.

Various degrees of benefit also were reported for the other conditions in which the drug was used. The reports were published in the journal of the American Medical Association.

Tulane university, in New Orleans, was founded in 1834 as a medical college to combat yellow fever.

Various uses for old hearses

OCONOMOWOC, Wis.—Maynard L. Popp, the Midwest's only exclusive dealer in used hearses, has about 15 second-hand funeral cars on his lot.

Used hearses can be put to good use—all it takes is a little imagination, according to Popp.

"Sold one to a painting contractor the other day," he said. "It was just the thing for hauling ladders."

Two other funeral cars went to stock car racers.

"They took the hearses to the Speedway, but drove them to pieces," he added. "The hearses helped attendance while they lasted—people liked the idea of seeing them race."

"I drive about 40,000 or 50,000 miles a year in hearses," he said. "Most of the undertakers want you to drive the hearse to their place so they can take a look at it. That's why I'm usually on the road."

Some of the wagons the directors bring in aren't worth enough to monkey with. But a good war hearse is a bargain. They sell for from $9,000 to $11,000 now, and they've had good care.

"There's one fellow up in Freeport, Minn., who's driving a 1934 hearse. It is as good as the day he bought it."

Civil Air Patrol units buy used hearses for crash wagons, fishermen pack them with gear on trips to the wilds. Others have ended their days as carnival sound trucks. Right soldiers managed a quick trip to Fort Campbell, Ky., in a battered hearse before it was retired.

Lucky landing in honeysuckle

ROANOKE, Va.—Thomas Elswick will always love the smell of honeysuckle.

Elswick, a railway engineer was bringing a freight to Roanoke. About 10 miles out he made some adjustments to braking equipment, then leaned out the door. Wind took his cap off. He grabbed for it. Just then the locomotive started around a curve and tossed him into a big clump of honeysuckle which broke his fall.

His assistant and the fireman didn't notice he was missing until the train started into the Roanoke freight yards. Just as they slowed it down Elswick arrived hitchhiking in an automobile, suffering only a few scratches.
